The Project Coaching Call: for projects stuck in the 'ideas' phase

You have a renovation or a new build in mind..., what happens next?

Book a 60 minute project coaching call with local construction expert Stuart Peaslee.

Stuart has often been asked to assist with projects that have fallen behind-schedule or are over-budget due to poor planning. The project coaching call is the one call that people suffering from RPS, (runaway project syndrome), WISH they had made BEFORE they started hemorrhaging cash. On this coaching call, Stuart will identify and define courses and options to best achieve your goals. You will obtain:

- 1) a big picture road map specifically for your type of project
- 2) a basic, customized action plan to execute immediately for your next steps.
- 3) a list of recommendations, what are the best choices for your type of project.

The clarity you achieve in this COACHING CALL, gives confidence moving forward with action plan in hand, and ways to avoid common pitfalls that average projects face.

Stuart conducts 5 coaching calls per month, booked well in advance, partly due to the cost of only $125.00 per call. The alternative of having to resuscitate an RPS victim does not compare. This is the best investment for you to make getting started. It is impossible to eliminate risks in construction, but keep this thought with you:

'Quality is never an accident, it is always the result of intelligent planning.' - John Ruskin
